

Bibliography

For the first step, you must put together a bibliography. If at all possible for your figure, your bibliography can and should contain variety of primary and secondary sources from books, magazines, newspapers, reputable academic websites, etc.

Your paper will need:

- At least one (1) book source
- At least one (1) primary source
- A limited use of "database" and "biography" sources and a focus on academic journals and academic websites

The school library has a research page at:

Footnotes are used when citing within the text of a CMS formatted document. These notes do not take the place of the final bibliographic page; instead strengthen a document's credibility by providing specific source information for the reader. Footnotes in CMS style generally include the author name, publication title, publication date, publisher information with the very first citation, and a page number.

Example:

Philosopher Steven Pepper refers to this phenomenon as a "cumulative collaboration of evidence."¹ The Purdue Owl is the authoritative source for history papers.²

¹ Stephen C. Pepper, World Hypotheses (Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1961), 49.
